

ALBANNACH

RESTAURANT AND WHISKY

Albannach's Whisky Master Course comprises three levels of classes and aims to turn even the whisky novice into an aficionado. Explore the regions of Scotland, take a tour around the world, or - for the self-proclaimed expert - discover the intricacies of the whisky production process and learn what makes each label unique.

Whisky Master Class vouchers make the perfect gift for friends or family. Classes are available for purchase separately or for a reduced package price. Each Albannach Whisky Master Course Package includes a free Albannach tasting set.

LEVEL ONE

AN INTRODUCTION TO SCOTCH WHISKY

90 minutes - £35

Novice/Beginner - 12 people maximum

Learn the basics of whisky tasting and production in this introduction to single malt Scotch. Our whisky sommelier will begin by discussing the history of whisky, guide you through the processes of whisky production, and take you on a tasting tour of each region in Scotland. Students will learn how to nose and taste whisky with the aid of Dave Broom's famous Single Malt Flavour Map.

The price includes the cost of the course, some lights canapés, and a flight of 6 whiskies.

LEVEL TWO

WHISKIES FROM AROUND THE WORLD

120 minutes - £45

Intermediate/Advanced - 12 people maximum

This class is aimed at students who have a basic knowledge of whisky, including the history of the single malt, its production process, and the methodology of tasting. Level two will focus on whiskies produced outside of Scotland, from locales as far away as Japan to those just across the Irish Sea.

The sommelier will illustrate how whiskies produced in various parts of the world differ and explain the all-important difference between "whisky" and "whiskey". Participation in level one is a prerequisite for this class--students who have sufficient knowledge may opt out of level one.

The price includes the cost of the course, some lights canapés, and a flight of 6 whiskies.

LEVEL THREE

THE SCIENCE OF WHISKY

150 minutes - £65

Advanced/Expert - 10 people maximum

Level three comprises a close examination of whisky, focusing on five major categories that distinguish labels from each other: age, types, wood finishes, peating, and chilfiltering. Students will sample eight whiskies to learn the art of discerning the subtle variations that occur between different single malts. The instructor will place emphasis on various chemical compounds that affect both the aroma and taste of whisky while guiding students through the finer points of whisky drinking and appreciation.

Level one and two are prerequisites for this course, although students who have sufficient knowledge may attend this course without participating in the first two.

The price includes the cost of the course, some lights canapés, and a flight of 8 whiskies.
